

Dear John,

This is my tentative flight schedule.

Arrives in Athens, Thursday, Dec. 17, 21:50, LH5914 (Lufthansa)

Departs Athens, Sunday, Dec. 20, 14:16, LH 1279 (Lufthansa)

I insist to stay at a hotel, but near your place. It looks quite an attractive neighborhood!

Talking to some architects today, the book, FARMAX by MVRDV, popped up. FARMAX is FAR (Floor Area Ratio) Maximum, a very similar concept of The FAR Game. I even worried about a plagiarism. But since FAR is a common noun, I guess it may not be a problem. But The FAR Game may still appear a copycat or outdated.... The worst is a tinge of Rem Koolhaas and Dutch architects. So I have been thinking alternative wordings.

-The FAT City Game

But, there is already a book and movie, Fat City. <http://www.imdb.com/title/tt0068575/>

-The Fat Architecture Game, or FAT Architecture Game (I mean literally fat building)

There is an architectural firm, FAT Architecture (FAT is Fashion, Architecture and Taste though)

<http://www.fashionarchitecturetaste.com/>

-Or, The Fatter Game

The title is as important as the whole content of exhibition. It has to be short, concise and connotative. I would like to keep the title in Korean (Yong-Jöng-Nyul Game). What do you think?

Sung.