(Title)

Fear Begotten by Adiaphora - a kiosk

(Country)

South Korea

(Text)

The artist, who interprets contemporary culture from a unique perspective filled with cynicism and humour, set up an unusual kiosk on the platform of former Suzu station. Items sold there included water, beer, salt, philosophy books published in Japan and South Korea – products which didn't look quite right for the familiar combination of the kiosk on the platform. Through an ordinary everyday setup, the artwork became a place for visitors to think about the relationship between Japan and countries across the ocean.
